What's Around & What's Up in Crook County

Early morning view of Prineville

WELL HELLO THERE!!!

OCTOBER.....MAY YOU BRING US AN ABUNDANCE OF LOVE, THE GREATEST OF JOYS AND NEVER ENDING PEACE AND HAPPINESS!

Kindness is a small, simple act..... Always remember that everyone has battles they are fighting and sometimes ONE simple act makes every amount of difference for someone. A kind word, a smile, holding the door open, paying for the coffee behind you, leaving a larger tip than usual.....what ever it is, do it with purpose. You never know when that one simple thing will be the saving grace for someone. And...as always....don't judge anyone who needs to mask up, sanitize or distance themselves in order to do their best for sickness prevention and/or spreading. Again, none of us know what someone else is going through!

One beautiful morning, my husband and I decided to go for a drive in the country. Unfortunately, no matter which road we took, we kept seeing dead possums lying on the shoulder.

After several miles of this, my husband turned to me and said, "Now I think I know the answer to the age-ole question 'Why did the chicken cross the road?'"

"What is it?" I asked.

"Well," he replied, "it was to prove to the possums that it could be done!"

As a dental hygienist, I had a family come in for cleanings. By the time I was ready for the father, he informed me I had a lot to live up to. His six-year-old daughter kept commenting that a "very smart lady" was cleaning their teeth today.

The father said she kept going on about my intelligence until he finally had to ask what she was basing her opinion on.

The little girl replied, "I heard people in there call her the Dental High Genius!"

Seeing Red Doesn't Mean Stop

I recently had a hand in helping with a local event that introduced something Prineville hadn't seen before.

Oddly, just mention Three's Company and my brain opens a pathway. I'm sitting on our family's gold couch, watching the television sitcom. I can hear the theme song, see the characters and almost hear the live audience laughing.

So I wasn't quite sure what would happen when event visionary Rhonda Bourgo essentially invited a town to put on red wigs, colorful caftans and 1970s jewelry and become Mrs. Roper for an evening. Prineville showed up.

What stayed with me afterward wasn't simply the turnout. It was watching pathways cross. For those of us old enough to remember the television show, the evening offered a pathway backward. For a few hours, something from our younger years had been pulled forward. Walking around downtown almost felt like wandering onto a television set filled with extras.

But younger people dressed up too. They weren't necessarily returning to a memory. They were creating one. The same red wigs that carried one generation backward were carrying another generation somewhere new. People explored downtown, entered businesses, laughed with strangers and discovered places they may have walked past before. For one evening, generations met on the same pathway.

Prineville had endured a difficult summer, and maybe we simply needed permission to look a little ridiculous together and have some fun. Rhonda, thank you for giving our community a reason to breathe.

And for one night, seeing red didn't mean stop. It meant go.

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF NEEDING A NEW CELL PHONE

I lived the entire 21st-century experience in five hours last week, a modern high-speed mix of anxiety, awe, rage, relief and resignation. I bought a new cellphone.

It all started when I went to repair my old phone, which had died one year and 10 months into it's two-year plan. The guy at the store said it was probably the battery. A new one was $70.

"Well, let's try it out and see if it works," I said.

"Sorry, it's in plastic wrapping," he replied. "Once it's open, it's yours."

Naturally, he had another plan. I could get another phone free, just by signing up for a new calling plan. And thus started the most baffling day I've had since... well, I bought my last cellphone!

It began with a staggering choice of some 75,000 models that all sounded like military jets. They had names like VX8100 Fighter Phone and the SGH-P777 Stealth Phone with Missile Launch Capability. There were BlackBerries, BlueBerries, Treos and Oreos - each with enough three-year plans to run the old Soviet Union.

When I asked why one phone was better than another, the salesman went on about the flash quality and the zoom lens ratio. They don't really sell phones any more....just cameras that make phone calls.

Each model also came with a wondrous choice of calling plans. Did I want the $500 phone with a 12-month plan, or the free phone with a 36-month plan that would stop working in 20 months, like my last one? Did I want the $30 plan with 400 free monthly twilight weekend minutes, of the $40 plan with unlimited predawn incoming calls, plus free Leap Year text-messaging and online photo development?

After 90 shopping minutes, I was so exhausted I ordered a phone just to escape the store. The salesman couldn't say what would happen to my old phone's leftover minutes so he suggested I call customer care.

BIG mistake! I spent the next 15 minutes punching buttons into a pay phone and waiting until "Patrick" from "promotions" finally answered. When I said I was at a store buying a phone, he seemed astonished.

Didn't I know I could order directly from customer care and save a fortune? I'd avoid the $35 connection fee, my first $30 monthly fee and countless other fees I'd never heard of.

He spent another 40 minutes outlining all his fabulous calling plan choices and asking me for enough personal data to get me through a US security check deep in the depths Baghdad. Finally, I surrendered and said I'd take the same phone as the store had - for about a $65 savings.

"Sorry," Patrick said, "I can't actually sell you that phone. I can only tell you about it. To purchase, you have to call back and tell 'sales' what we selected." ARRRRGGGGG!!!!

Ten more minutes of punching numbers and I was talking to Martin in 'sales'. I recited the phone model and plan Patrick gave me, but Martin couldn't find it in his computer. After 15 more minutes of searching, he announced that Patrick had made a mistake.

It was impossible to save either the $35 connection fee or my first month's bill. All he could offer was exactly the same deal the store had 90 minutes earlier.

At this point, I was ballistic. If I'd have been at the customer care office, they'd have had to tie me down with ropes while the police netted me. I had phone rage - double phone rage.

It took poor Martin five minutes to talk me down, using every ounce of skill he learned in his 1-day Psychotic Customer Psychiatry course. He finally suggested that I go back inside the store to see if they could assist me. I just went home.

Later that day, I spoke to a nice woman in customer care who informed me that Patrice had been right about the $35 connection fee - 'sales' didn't know about his special offer in 'promotions'. But, he was

My three sisters and I have weight problems and are always sharing diet tips. One day my oldest sister was showing us a low-fat cookbook and pointed out a chicken dish she had tried the night before. Reading the ingredients, I commented, "It looks like it would taste really bland."

"It did," she replied, "until I added cheese and sour cream."

Dining out one evening, I noticed some teenagers celebrating at a nearby table. When one girl pulled out a camera, I offered to take a picture of the group. After one photo, I suggested taking another just in case the first one didn't come out.

"Oh, no, that's okay," she said, as she took back her camera. "I always get double prints!"
